ABOUT GOVIS 2026

The Global Ophthalmology & Vision Science Congress 2026 (GOVIS 2026) is an international platform dedicated to advancing eye health, visual sciences, and clinical ophthalmology through collaboration, research exchange, and innovation. Scheduled for October 26–28, 2026, the congress will be held in Boston, Massachusetts, United States, with a comprehensive online participation format for global accessibility. Bringing together ophthalmologists, optometrists, vision researchers, eye-care professionals, technologists, and industry representatives, the event aims to foster dialogue and inspire groundbreaking solutions to improve vision care worldwide. With an emphasis on scientific excellence, the congress offers an environment where experts can explore evolving challenges and opportunities in the field.

The Global Ophthalmology & Vision Science Congress offers a unique opportunity for networking, collaboration, and professional development. Participants will engage with leading experts, connect with global peers, and explore state-of-the-art technologies showcased by industry partners. Whether attending onsite in Boston or joining virtually, delegates will benefit from high-quality scientific content, interactive discussions, and opportunities for research visibility. The congress also welcomes students, early-career professionals, and emerging researchers, providing a platform to present work, gain recognition, and foster mentorship connections. Join us in GOVIS 2026 to contribute to shaping the future of ophthalmology and vision science on a global scale.
